

Homœopathy works for me!

This publication celebrates the diversity of the homoeopathic approach to wellness, as it is used to manage a range of conditions while maintaining adherence to core principles.

Throughout homoeopathy's more than 200-year history, it has been the experience of homoeopathic practitioners and their patients worldwide that homoeopathy can make a real difference in managing illness on a whole-person level: mentally, emotionally and physically.

Homoeopaths may approach the homoeopathic treatment of their clients in different ways but the core principles are universally adhered to.

Individualisation, where the practitioner seeks to find the medicine whose symptom picture most closely matches that of the patient, is one such principle. Treating the whole person rather than one condition in isolation would be another example of such a core concept. Yet another principle would be looking for what homoeopaths call a strange, rare or peculiar symptom: a striking or unique symptom specific to a particular patient, which can often lead the practitioner to the homoeopathic medicine that matches the patient's situation.

Homoeopaths, therefore, do not specialise in particular areas of the body or type of condition. They match the homoeopathic medicine to the patient's state as expressed through all of their symptoms. The presenting ailment is seen and treated as part of a larger whole.

Douglas M Borland MD (1885-1960), head of the Royal London Homoeopathic Hospital during the Second World War, was one of the most famous British homoeopaths of the 20th century. It was said of Borland that he gave the impression of never being in a hurry, always having plenty of time to listen with sympathetic understanding to the many patients seeking help and advice. This is the experience of many who seek a homoeopathic approach: the consultation is not rushed, giving the patient the opportunity to explain their situation in detail. This is, of course, necessary to build a picture of the whole person, rather than just focusing and prescribing separately on the individual ailments a patient presents with.

When seeking homoeopathic care, choose a practitioner registered with the Australian Register of Homoeopaths (AROH). Professional members of the Australian Homoeopathic Association

(AHA) are AROH registered and are recognised by many major private health insurance funds for rebates on ancillary benefits tables. Registered practitioners are required to meet a high standard of education and abide by professional codes of conduct and standards of practice. To find a practitioner in your area, go to the AHA website, homeopathyoz.org.

Wishing you all health and happiness,

MARTIN COSTIGAN, President, Australian Homeopathic Association

HOMŒOPATHY IS A NATURAL, GENTLE AND HOLISTIC TRADITIONAL MEDICINE BUT MOST PEOPLE KNOW VERY LITTLE ABOUT IT. HERE'S A PRIMER TO GET YOU STARTED.

What can homeopathy do for you?

Homoeopathy aims to treat the whole person, taking into account lifestyle, personality and hereditary factors in addition to the history of your complaint. Homoeopathy recognises that each person is unique so, for instance, headaches in different patients would be treated with different homoeopathic medicines according to each patient's unique symptoms, which might also include mental and emotional characteristics.

Homoeopathy can benefit people of all ages, at any stage of life: women, men, mothers, fathers, very young and older children, teenagers and the elderly.

What is homoeopathy?

The cornerstone of homoeopathy is the Law of Similars. This principle states that substances that produce symptoms in a healthy individual can be used to treat similar symptoms in a sick person. Homoeopathy is a system of medicine which aims to promote the innate healing responses to diseases by administering a specially prepared substance that mimics the symptoms of the disease.

Homoeopathy is now used worldwide and its benefits have been experienced by millions of people.

Homoeopathy is legally recognised as a distinctive system of medicine in 42 countries and acknowledged as an aspect of complementary and alternative medicines in 28 others.

What to expect when you go to see a homoeopath

The first homoeopathic appointment can take an hour or more and involves a lengthy enquiry into the patient's symptoms. Treatment then involves the prescription of the most suitable medicine, matching the symptoms and individual characteristics of the patient to the medicine. Your practitioner might also advise general lifestyle changes.

Tell your doctor and homœopath about medications

You should tell your doctor if you are planning to start a course of homoeopathic care for your complaint. Never stop taking conventional drugs without the knowledge and approval of your doctor. To get a full understanding of your situation, your homoeopath will ask you what conventional drugs you are taking.

Homceopathic medicines

Homoeopathic medicines are derived from plant, animal, mineral and microbiological sources. They are prepared according to strict guidelines set out in international pharmacopoeias and under the control of the Therapeutic Goods Administration (TGA). They are highly diluted and are most commonly taken in the form of liquid drops or pillules.

Choosing a practitioner

If you want to use homoeopathy, you should consult a registered practitioner. All Professional Members of the Australian Homoeopathic Association (AHA) are registered with the Australian Register of Homoeopaths (AROH) and are recognised by many major private health insurance funds for rebates on ancillary benefits tables.

All AHA Professional Members are educated to high standards of practice and adhere to codes of professional conduct. Find a practitioner near you at homeopathyoz.org.

Homoeopathy is a traditional medicine and may generally be used in conjunction with other treatments and medications without adverse effects.

For any ongoing chronic condition or in case of severe acute symptoms, it is important to be assessed or examined by your healthcare professional or specialist.

ALWAYS SEEK MEDICAL ADVICE IN EMERGENCIES.

In 2008, 51 medical practitioners participated in collecting treatment data from outpatient departments across four UK homœopathic hospitals over a four-week period. The study included National Health Service-managed homœopathic hospitals in Bristol, London, Glasgow and Liverpool.

A total of 235 different medical complaints were recorded. The most commonly encountered conditions, in descending order of frequency, were: eczema, chronic fatigue syndrome (CFS), menopausal disorders, osteoarthritis, depression, breast cancer, rheumatoid arthritis, asthma, anxiety, irritable bowel syndro anxiety, irritable bowel syndrome, multiple sclerosis, psoriasis, allergy (unspecified), fibromyalgia, migraine, premenstrual syndrome, chronic rhinitis, headache, vitiligo, seasonal allergic rhinitis, chronic intractable pain, insomnia, ulcerative colitis, acne, psoriatic arthropathy, urticaria, ovarian cancer, attention-deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD), epilepsy and sinusitis.

During the study, patients attended appointments from two to six times. A total of 56.9 per cent of all the patients seen were suffering from multiple complaints. These patients generally required multiple appointments.

At their second visit, 34.5 per cent of patients considered that they were experiencing improvement affecting their daily life. This figure had increased to 59.3 per cent by the sixth visit.

Within the four weeks, patients with chronic fatigue syndrome reported more than a 50 per cent improvement, as experienced in their day-to-day life. Women who experienced menopausal disorders reported a 73.3 per cent improvement on average.

In conclusion, it was found that a high proportion of patients reported improvements in their health that were positively affecting their daily life.

One in a million

Amanda, in her early 20s, presented at my clinic with infertility. She had been diagnosed with ovarian failure and been told by her doctor that she had a "one in a million chance" of becoming pregnant.

She had been married for two years to her high-school sweetheart and they had been trying to start a family. Understandably, she was in tears, explaining that they would be unable to afford IVF treatment.

Without being able to make any promises, I reassured her that we only needed one healthy egg to achieve a pregnancy. I explained that homoeopathic medicines are often found to be capable of establishing optimal conditions for conception: helping hormones to balance, overcoming candida and creating the right pH level in the vagina to produce the appropriate mucous and strong ovulation.

We went into detail about Amanda's medical history and her general and reproductive health: menstruation and hormone levels. She had her FSH and progesterone levels checked via a blood test. Based on her symptoms, we concluded that we needed to create healthy vaginal mucous and move her ovulation into the middle of her cycle. Amanda was given four pleasant-tasting homoeopathic medicines: two to take daily, two weekly. I recommended she start on a probiotic supplement to address any candida.

Successful conception depends on the health of both partners and homoeopathic medicines often help to improve the male partner's reproductive health. In this instance, the husband had diabetes, so the couple took a homoeopathic medicine to address candida and prevent mutual reinfection.

It was an absolute joy when Amanda reported two months later that she was pregnant. She was given a homoeopathic medicine to support her pregnancy and is due to give birth soon.

The quirky things

I recently had the pleasure of finding a homoeopathic medicine for a beautiful young woman in her early 30s. Anna's main complaint was "brain fog". Her thoughts felt all muddled up: when she tried to communicate, the words wouldn't come. She felt vague, confused and easily distracted, and tired easily when trying to study or concentrate. Her thoughts were crowded and rushed and this left her feeling anxious and overwhelmed.

Otherwise, Anna was fit and healthy. Given that she was aware of her food sensitivities and looked after her diet, Anna's mental symptoms seemed to be inexplicable.

There are dozens of homoeopathic medicines that match these symptoms. So, how to decide which one? Since homoeopathy takes into account the whole person, not just a bunch of symptoms in isolation, the more personal insight the homoeopath can gain about the patient's most peculiar experience of the world, the easier it is to decipher what medicine is needed.

Homoeopathy really shines in situations when a symptom appears inexplicable, strange, rare or peculiar.

Much to my delight, Anna mentioned a recurring experience she'd had since childhood, whereby she senses objects around her to be further away than they actually are, so much so that she has to reach out to touch them to reset her spatial awareness. Personal insights like this are absolute gold to a homoeopath. It instantly pointed to the specific medicine Anna needed.

We all have quirky little experiences, thoughts, behaviours and feelings. Make note of yours because, as unpleasant as they may be at times, a homoeopath knows they could be the key to a more healthy, happy you.

Homoeopathy satiates my natural curiosity and wonder about our unique experiences in life and I am forever amazed to discover the mostly hidden healing power of the natural world.

Backyard research into topical homoeopathic medicines

The only topical homoeopathic medicine I had in my dispensary up until 2007 was one for sprains and strains and, if I am honest, I used to forget it was there and usually dispensed the oral alternative.

All of that changed in 2007, due to the results that were being achieved at our clinic, where we see people suffering from conditions subsequent to infection with Ross River and Barmah Forest viruses. (These are both notifiable diseases and sufferers will have received a diagnosis from a medical practitioner.)

In 2007, trials began to find a topical homoeopathic product that would soothe mosquito and sand-fly bites. Not everyone on the Northern Rivers of New South Wales contracts a virus; however, the majority of people do get bitten by mosquitoes and sand flies annually.

People of the Lower Clarence volunteered to get bitten and stung and did so for two years, until the summer of 2009 when the topical homoeopathic product went on sale to the public.

"I always used to be the first person to get bitten in a social gathering and now I am one of the last" (About 25 per cent of participants made this comment.)

SEVEN HILLS

This homoeopathic product is now being used to treat various other skin conditions characterised by itching, inflammation and swelling.

The trials to find a topical homoeopathic insect repellent are ongoing. The data already collated is showing signs that the repellent formula may not be too far away!

More than skin deep

Eddie, eight months old, had a rash which seemed related to teething and excessive salivation. It had started a few days before and a number of barrier and rash creams had had no effect. The rash looked red and swollen.

The baby was very restless and seemed "cranky", particularly in the evening. He kept on rubbing the rash, causing some fluid to discharge from one vesicle, but was tearful and screamed when the rash was touched during washing or applying cream. His mother had been using a flannel soaked in warm water to wipe the area since Eddie seems to dislike the touch of cold water.

Eddie wanted to be carried but still constantly fretted. This was particularly bad around midnight; he just would not settle.

When asked whether there were any other complaints, Eddie's mother explained that for the past month he had been constipated off and on for a few days at a time. He had passed a very smelly stool the day before and it was really loose. When offered water, Eddie just took a little at a time.

How was Eddie's appetite? He was still breast feeding but had been off milk since the day before. He seemed to drink very little at a time and would then get irritated and Homoeopathy seeks to treat the whole person rather than one condition in isolation, so all symptoms occurring at the same time are taken into consideration.

fuss. His mother wondered if his chin felt sore. Eddie didn't want solids but accepted a few bites of really mushy food now and again.

Eddie had experienced a raised temperature around midnight the night before but on examination only the area covered in the rash felt warm. He stiffened when his tummy was touched and seemed to feel uncomfortable. His chest was clear.

After receiving the homoeopathic medicine, the rash quickly subsided and Eddie was a much happier child. His mother was delighted and booked him in for treatment to strengthen his constitution, following this acute episode.

Something for everyone

Jessica, a few months old, had acute colic. For the past six weeks, she had been screaming in the afternoon and evening for hours until falling asleep. The doctor had advised that there was no problem and "she should grow out of this soon". Jessica's mother was desperate and didn't know what to do. Jessica had also lost her appetite. Symptoms immediately diminished upon starting homoeopathic treatment. Within two weeks, she returned to being a happy little girl without the night-time traumas.

Brandon had experienced recurring tonsillitis and chronic cough since starting pre-school. His mother was fed up at having to use antibiotics every few weeks, saying Brandon "gets over one cold then develops another". She had seen his brother's asthma improve with homoeopathy and wanted to see if it might help Brandon as well. With treatment, his cough immediately settled. Over six months of occasional treatment, the recurring tonsillitis disappeared.

Homœopathy can be used by people of all ages.

John, early 40s, had chronic allergic welts spreading all over his body as well as breathlessness and coughing from contact with his pet dog. He was sceptical about homoeopathy but his wife had encouraged him to come along. He'd tried numerous drugs to no avail and was totally against his specialist's advice to undergo 12–18 months of regular desensitising vaccinations. He'd had to avoid any contact with his pet or any objects the dog had touched, otherwise he would develop the welts. He also suffered with hay fever and mild asthma. After starting treatment, the welts began to settle; breathlessness and coughing subsided. After two months of treatment, he could play with his dog and all other symptoms had disappeared.

Let's investigate ...

Carol was in her mid-50s and worked shifts in customer service, which involved heavy lifting. She suffered from arthritis in her knuckles and fingers and had asthma.

However, she came for treatment because of a pain in her right hip and hot flushes. Tests showed inflammation in the hip joints. The doctor had recommended steroid injections and hormone replacement therapy.

The pain in the hip radiated to the right leg and across the back and was worse on walking. Carol's fingers were stiff and it was hard for her to get on with her work. She preferred summer and craved salt, chocolate and sugar.

When asked how she felt in herself, Carol said she was "not feeling healthy any more"; she was always tired. She had dreams of spiritual things, dead people and angels, and cried if someone was nice to her. Financial pressures added to her stress.

After the first homoeopathic prescription, Carol felt much better but she was still tired and the hot flushes continued. She surprised me by saying that, previously, she had forgotten to tell me about a pain in the right side of her lower abdomen, which she'd had for a long time but which had now disappeared.

At her third visit, the hip and knee pain and digestive troubles were gone but her knees "clicked" when she climbed stairs. The hot flushes were waking her up in the middle of the night and making her throw off the covers. There was also a bit of tightness in the chest.

This called for a change of medicine, to focus on the hot flushes, and after 15 days Carol told me she had never felt happier: "I am feeling cool and had to wear a jacket [for the first time in] a long time." She was happy and laughing, there was no more pain in her hip, knee or back, and she had started exercising.

Back in action

Isabel, in her late 70s, had to undergo surgery under full anaesthesia for a small kidney tumour. The operation was successful, the incision healed well and recovery proceeded normally. However, Isabel developed a severe case of sciatica in the weeks following the operation. She believed that it was due to her back being sprained while under anaesthesia.

She had a severe prickling pain on the left side of the sacrum, running down the back of the thigh and on the outside of the left calf. Sometimes it felt like a pressure, but every so often it would shoot like lightning into the foot and then be followed by an intense and continuous pain.

Isabel was given various pain medicines and had to have regular injections to cope with the pain. After a number of weeks without visible improvement, the doctor was considering another operation to fuse some of the vertebrae in her back.

Local practitioner details here

In Isabel's case, the pain was always worse from being upright: it started as soon as any weight was put on the left leg and she couldn't stand or walk for long. While it got worse when lying on her stomach, she felt much better when lying on her back with the left knee bent and left to drop sideways. Putting something warm on her lower back reduced the pain and sitting became bearable if she sat with a cushion under her left buttock only.

To find the correct homœopathic medicine, specific information is very important; in particular, what makes a condition better or worse.

A daily dose of a homoeopathic medicine was prescribed on the very specific symptoms described by Isabel. Over the period of a few days, the pain started to reduce and it fully disappeared within three weeks. At her next appointment to receive an injection, the doctor agreed that it was not required. After another few weeks, Isabel discontinued all pain medication and has not had a recurrence of the sciatica in the past nine months.

Gone viral

I was in my early 30s when I succumbed to the highly contagious chicken pox (Varicella). As is typical for many adults, I had a severe case of all the usual symptoms, starting out with a high fever, aches throughout the body and a headache that left me in a fog. A couple of days later a rash of raised red bumps started to appear in crops all over my body and developed into small blistered vesicles. The feeling of exhaustion was just overwhelming.

The local doctor who diagnosed me summed it up: "You are feeling miserable, you have a right to feel miserable, go home and be miserable." I was grateful, however what could I do to manage the immediate symptoms or the intense itching and risk of subsequent scarring, all part of the progression of chicken pox?

I was very anxious to get well quickly as all this coincided with the imminent birth of my sister's first child. I'd been invited to be present at the birth — a great honour and something I didn't want to miss

It was then by chance that I spoke with a local homoeopath, who took down a detailed description of my symptoms and gave a homoeopathic medicine. It immediately relieved the rash Homœopathy can be of help in both acute and chronic situations. The chicken pox virus is a member of the herpes virus family: it includes the cold sore virus (herpes simplex 1), shingles (herpes zoster) and mononucleosis (Epstein-Barr virus). Mononucleosis is also known as glandular fever or "Kissing Disease".

and headache and, more importantly, resulted in minimal itching or scarring. Most importantly, I recovered in time to see my beautiful nephew come into the world.
